Editorial

WHAT DIRECTION PROSPERITY?

The editor of the Times-Virginian is not sold on the idea that production must be limited and controlled in order to restore prosperity.

This thesis is a centerpiece on the New Deal table. Yet to our conception, it admits of obvious fallacies. It assumes that the depression was caused by over-production, and that somehow, if we limit all types of production, prices will rise, money will circulate, wages will increase, and prosperity will be returned.

As a matter of fact, there is no limit to demand and consumption that can be foreseen in several generations. The major industries are merely in their collective infancies, so far as distribution is concerned. It is conceivable that the number of automobiles, for example, America could use might easily be trebled without reaching the saturation point. Even farm products, nearer consumption limits than manufactured articles, might be increased beyond 1925-1929 levels in a more satisfactory economic condition.

Consumption and demand depend on the ability to pay. Literally hundreds of thousands of radios, electric refrigerators, automobiles, etc. would eagerly be purchased IF there existed funds with which to purchase them. Rural electrification has merely begun, and a wild rush of BUYING is awaiting the spark of CASH MONEY in CIRCULATION. In like manner huge wheat, cotton, tobacco and corn surpluses denote NOT OVER-PRODUCTION but rather POOR DISTRIBUTION OF MONEY WITH WHICH TO BUY THESE PRODUCTS AND UNORGANIZED SEEKING OF MARKETS.

To seek to curtail American production below the 1926 level is to set 1926 as the acme of civilization, the Utopia of human progress, the New Atlantis of convenience, luxury, democracy, science and human welfare. The assumption is false and dangerous.

The New Deal errs in curbing investment of capital in business expansion. Human wants are never satisfied. The "Brain Trust" mustn't forget that in plotting a new economy.

This leads to the belief of the editor of the Times-Virginian that it is unsound to limit hours of labor throughout industry. If we would look ahead and realize that what we call "over-production" is really "general under-consumption", and that this general under-consumption can be cured by developing consumer buying-power in proper channels, we would then conclude that talk of the 30 or even 40 hour week is economic tommy-rot. "Share the work" sounds nice and poses as noble. Really, it is distributing suffering and meagreness over as many as possible, rather than as few as possible. Shorter hours do not make larger pay-rolls. They merely make smaller pay-envelopes. Smaller pay-envelopes ruin retail trade, the life-blood of industry. Surely no leader in the New Deal is so child-like as to imagine that 10% even of the businesses in America can increase pay-rolls for a long enough period for the increase to pay off the worker's private debts and eventually after at least more than a year react to a small gradual increase in collective buying power. If NRA is built upon that hypothesis, it is doomed to dismal failure. Any intelligent economist should realize that over 90% of American businesses today can either increase the number of employees at a lower wage, or increase the wages of a reduced number of employees, but in no event can both be done. A juggling of the division of a pay-roll that is finite, not infinite, if you please, is sophomoric and gets us no place.

CONSUMER BUYING-POWER will do away with all consideration of the wage and hour problem. Business will take care of itself if the public has money to spend. When the government undertakes to enter the retail price-fixing field, it is hopelessly befuddling the issue. The control of individual prices is not akin to control of price levels (purchasing power of the dollar.) If a store wishes to sell an item at below cost in order to induce customers who will buy other items for a meagre profit, that is not only its own business, but we would say sound business. To set a minimum retail price of cost plus ten per cent, is to sterilize business, throttle competition and stifle enterprise. On the other hand, control of the purchasing power of the dollar is not only sound but absolutely necessary. Retail price is merely a matter of sales. When GOODS MOVE ... THE PRICE IS RIGHT. The converse of that is false, because it has no economic reason behind it. The government owes it to business and to capital to regulate the value of money, the dollar, and to inflate or deflate that value as conditions arise. Business loses confidence in regulation if contracts made at inflated values must be paid in deflated dollars.

From these approaches, we then put our question: "WHAT DIRECTION PROSPERITY?"

We see the answer to that question as being in two fields. First, natural laws will solve the problem in time. Economics moves in cycles and natural events bring about crests and troughs. Another world war like that of 1914 would cause rapid circulation of money and prosperity for a cycle of years. A new industrial development would do the same. (The rise of the automobile industry created a few boom years for the entire nation. The natural rise of another industry of major size would do the same.) Time has a way of solving problems, be they physical, spiritual or financial.

The other answer lies in the field of controlled and planned return of prosperity. That the NEW DEAL is attempting to accomplish. The great leader, Franklin D. Roosevelt, one of the truly great presidents of the century, admits that this is at best a series of experiments. We have attempted in this article to point out what, to us at any rate, seem fallacies and false assumptions in the regulated recovery. The Times-Virginian feels that regulated recovery must begin with the belief that a plan of distribution of money must be practiced which will enable production, be it agricultural or industrial, to march on in confidence and initiative towards the satisfying of human wants. And that is the crux of our views. Human wants cannot be poured into a mold and so long as human wants exist there will and should be the desire to produce such things as will satisfy. The government should fulfill the function of supplying the medium of transaction between these two dynamic forces. We must then look to an inflated currency as the immediate step to restore buying power. Buying power will catch up the surpluses in production and speed expansion, forsaken in 1929. The government will then owe it to the nation to watch the pace of inflation until it reaches a norm, and then when necessary deflate. In currency regulation, skillfully controlled, we see the field of planned prosperity.

The duty of the citizen is to join with his president in this planned return of prosperity.

Take a Pinch of BLACK-DRAUGHT
For Distress After Meals

He had suffered distress after meals, but by taking Thedford's Black-Draught he was relieved of the trouble, writes Mr. Jess Higgins, of Dawsonville, Ga.

"I had sour stomach and gas," Mr. Higgins explains, "and often I would have bilious spells. I read about Thedford's Black-Draught and began to take it. It relieved me of this trouble. I keep it all the time now. I consider it a fine medicine. I take a pinch of Black-Draught after meals when I need it. It helps to prevent sick headache and to keep the system in good order."

Now you can get Black-Draught in the form of a SYRUP, for CHILDREN.

Join! Local Drive Starts Sunday

For some years the American National Red Cross has annually expended thousands of dollars for relief in Appomattox county. This aid has relieved local business and church people from having to take care of hundreds of families through the winter. Some local charity work has continued, but only on a small scale. The Red Cross has been the charity organization in this county.

This year the Red Cross is asking this county for 500 members. In the light of what has been done for this county, that quota is not excessive. And of the total raised, one-half stays in the county, in addition to the annual help sent here by the national Red Cross.

The case is plain, our duty is before us. The Red Cross membership sticker should be in every window. It is an emblem of Christian honor.

The Red Cross is the GREAT MOTHER. When needy children appeal, the GREAT MOTHER does not turn them down. "When I was hungry and naked, ye clothed and fed me."

Appomattox can't fall down in this drive. It would be the rankest ingratitude. And our people ARE grateful. See the workers, and JOIN.

Repairs ... ers can be avoided and trouble-free service ... joyed through the ... if the cooling systems are cleaned and tight... by an antifreeze solution of the best permanent ... kind, then protected ... by an antifreeze solution of the best permanent ... type. Most of the ... work on farm machinery must be done in the farm ... workshop, so ... effective engineers have compiled this year the following ... instructions:
1. Drain the ... system by disconnecting the lower hose. The small drain cock is not large enough to permit the passage of large rust flakes or other foreign substances.
2. Disconnect the lower hose connection at the engine, and put a quart or more of kerosene into the empty system along with a standard brand of cleanser. Kerosene will loosen rust in places not reached by water or the regular cleanser compound.
Fill the system to within four inches of the top of the overflow pipe. Throw a blanket or other covering over the radiator so that the motor will heat quickly, and run the motor at medium speed until a temperature of about 160 degrees is reached, but never exceeding 200 degrees.
After the motor has reached the required temperature, stop the engine, remove the cover, disconnect the lower hose again and drain the entire system. The amount of rust and scale which will pour out will be surprising.
Fresh water must now be forced through the entire system. Cook tapioca, boiling water and salt over hot water, stirring frequently until tapioca is clear (about 15 minutes.) In the meantime dissolve raspberry flavored gelatin in warm water. Add sugar and lemon juice. Combine with cooked tapioca. Cool. Pour into a mold. Place in refrigerator. Chill until firm. Serve with cream.
Apricot Surprise
½ pound dried apricots
3 cups water
2 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
¼ teaspoon salt
½ cup sugar
Wash apricots. Soak in 3 cups water 1 hour and cook until tender. Drain. To juice, add enough water to make 2 cups liquid. Add tapioca and salt, and cook in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Cool. Force apricots through sieve. Fold pulp (about 1 cup) into tapioca mixture. Chill and serve with whipped cream. Serves 6.
4. Remove the ... tem. If compressed air is not available, strong pressure with a hose will serve. Place the nozzle of the hose at the open connection at the bottom, directing the flow upward through the radiator and down through the block. This is known as power flushing.
5. Care should be taken not to use too high a pressure in the power flushing as the radiator may be damaged. Radiators are tested for eight pounds, but as high as forty may be used for a few seconds at a time. The radiator cap must be on securely through this operation and the thermostat must be removed.
6. After the power flushing has continued until the water runs clear with no trace of rust, the flushing equipment may be removed, the hose connected and the clamps tightened. The system should then be filled with clear water and the required amount of anti-freeze solution of the permanent type which does not boil away and leave the motor unprotected in sudden cold weather.

Why the Sudden Change to Liquid Laxatives?
Doctors have always recognized the value of the laxative—but dose can be measured, and water action can be controlled.
The public, too, is fast returning to the use of liquid laxatives. People have learned that a properly prepared liquid laxative brings a perfect movement without any discomfort at the time, or after.
The dose of a liquid laxative can be varied to suit the needs of the individual. The action can thus be regulated. It terms no habit; you need not take a "double dose" a day or two later. Nor will a mild liquid laxative irritate the kidneys.

THE young cook's first tour in the kitchen can be as much fun as her first Cook's Tour abroad. Make it a game and a lesson—by showing her how to measure each ingredient as carefully as a professional does.
No sloppy half-cups, no "that's near enough" tablespoons. Buy (at any five-and-ten) two standard measuring cups and a set of measuring spoons. Show her (with sugar) how to measure a level tablespoon or teaspoon by drawing a knife over the surface.
And here are two recipes which will delight any small cook's heart —easy to make, pleasing to the eyes and delicious to eat.
Raspberry Delight
3 tablespoons quick cooking tapioca
1 cup boiling water
¼ teaspoon salt
1 package raspberry flavored gelatin
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1½ cups warm water
4 tablespoons sugar
Cook tapioca, boiling water and salt in double boiler 15 minutes, or until tapioca is clear, stirring frequently. Add sugar. Cool. Force apricots through sieve. Fold pulp (about 1 cup) into tapioca mixture. Chill and serve with whipped cream. Serves 6.
